EGLI è stato, ed è pur anche lo stile hoggi giorno di parecchi, che compongono, ovvero altrimenet orreggono libri, che nelle loro Dedicazioni, incapricciati & stravolti dall' amore sviscerato che portano alle loro opere & fatiche (degne od indegne che si siano) ò si mettono a gionfiarle con spampanate e girandole di lodi che nolla finiscono mai, ò pure dall' altro canto si mettono ad innalzare da là del terzo cielo la Nascita, Casato, Virtù & Prodezze de' Patroni a cui dedicano cotali opere, infiocchiandoli per tutta, l' Epistola con fioretti gli più sfoggiati che forsi si possano ricercare dagli più intimi ripostigli della Retorica, con pensiero di accreditare tanto maggiormente dette lor' opere, dove che al contrario, bene spesso gl' istessi Patroni a cui vengono dedicate ne restano stomacati, per non dire, affatto scandalizzati; hora per me tanto, hò voluto sfuggire in questa mia Dedicazione e l' un' e l' altro di questi estremi, quello per non dare nella Philautia, questo per non dare nell' Adulatione, benche havrei potuto (& anche senza verun' eccesso) ingolfarmi in un Pelago d' Elogij della loro Honoratissima Compagnia, sì in generale, inquanto all' Antichità, Opulenza, Splendidezza, Magnificenza, & insieme il gran Rinome che hà per tuta L' Italia & il Levante (motivo riguardevole che m' hà spinto a fare questo Dedicazione) come in particolare; di moltissimi Soggetti meritevoli che si truovano in essa, ma che serve? Non si suole indorare l' oro medesimo anzi indorano gli stucchi & i metalli di bassa lega però non dirò altro, solo che alla buona di Dio questa coppia di Vocabolarij, quale che ella si sia, semplice e schietta, a' Seniori & Antiani della loro Honoratissima, Compagnia vien dedicata per sua maggior Autorità & Appoggio, a' più Giovanni vien raccomandata per loro maggior utile e commodità,

TO THEIR
Most Honoured Friend,
M^r. JAMES STANIER,
MERCHANT IN LONDON.

S I R.

THE great Care and Pains which Sig.^r GIO. TORRIANO hath taken in setting forth the following Work, hath justly entitled him to a Right of making his particular Dedication thereof, which he hath done, To the Right Worshipful Company of the Turkey Merchants, whereof you are a worthy Member: But the interest we have in the Copy (as from the time of our purchase of it, we ever intended) we here most humbly offer to YOUR SELF. For to whom can we more fitly present a Dictionary of a Foreign, and especially the ITALIAN Tongue, than to YOU, by whose favours and ready compliance, at all times, with our Occasions, our affairs have had their Foundation, and are still carried on in Foreign Parts, but principally in THAT COUNTRY.

S I R, This Volume would swell to too big a bulk, if this Epistle did contain but the Catalogue of the Obligations, which in the series of several years YOU have heaped upon us; the sence whereof hath hitherto been confin'd within the bounds of our own Breasts. We beseech you give us now leave to make Publication of them to all the World, and to be so just as to endeavour, that not only in ENGLAND, but in the PARTS BEYOND SEA, where your Correspondents have daily experience of our Engagements to YOU, there may be perpetual Monuments of our acknowledgments of them; and that our Gratitude may travel as far as the use of this Book will carry it. We confess these are but mean returns for so great Courtesies, but being the effects of our grateful dispositions and respects, we hope may find acceptance with you, which is only aimed at in this DEDICATION, By

Your most Humble and

Most Respectful Servants,

John Martin.

T H E P R E F A C E.

When the Rareties of Italy (that Paradise of Art and Nature, that Academy and Garden of the World) do daily call so many of the English Nation, and Foreigners from all parts into it; when its excellent Books do travel into all Nations, and find Universal Esteem; and when all Merchants that traffick into the Levant, must Trade by that Language, it would be superfluous for me, by a studied Discourse, to invite any to the Learning thereof. And the use of a Dictionary, in order to its attaining, is so obvious to all Understandings, that it would be impertinent to demonstrate its Necessity. I shall therefore only give the Peruser an Account, in short, of this present Edition.

In the Year 1611. John Florio set forth a second Edition of his Italian and English Dictionary; which, for Variety of Words, was far more Copious than any extant in the World at that time. This, notwithstanding, being defective, and other Dictionaries and Italian Authors coming to his Hands, he collected out of them an Addition of many Thousand Words and Phrases, relating to Arts, Sciences, and Exercises; intending (if he had lived) a third Edition; which he left behind him in a very fair Manuscript, perfected, and ready for the Press.

This Manuscript I have diligently perused, and in very many places supplied, out of the generally approved Dictionary of the Accademici della Crusca, and several others, that have been set forth since his Death. I have likewise much corrected the English Interpretations, and (where there was cause) reduced them to their genuine Sense, as they are now used in these Modern Times.

There wanted yet a Dictionary, English and Italian; which I have compiled by my own Industry, and added to it several Proverbs and Instructions for the Learning of the Language: So that I question not, but now this will be the most compleat Italian-English Dictionary that ever yet hath been published; and that all such as shall apply themselves to the Study of this Noble Tongue, will find in it all necessary Helps, and expected Satisfaction. For my own part, I shall account these my Labours well employed, if they shall be accepted by the English Nation; for whose Service I have spent the greatest part of my Time, and to whom I shall perpetually be,

A most Humble, and

Devoted Servant,

Gio. Torriano.

An Advertisement.

W Heresoever this Asterism [*] is placed before any word, it signifies, either that all such Words are not to be found in Mr. Florio's last Edition of his Dictionary, or that there is an Alteration and Addition in their Interpretations. But these Asterisms (by Over-sight) in some whole Letters, and very many places, are omitted: Of which, the Reader is desired to take notice, and to judge of the Additions in this Dictionary, as upon Perusal he shall find just Cause and Reason.

H.

H. The letter H. called in Italian Hacca, which of some is counted no letter, but an aspiration; some there be that have lately severely banished the same from their writings, and will hardly allow the use thereof; but I find, that the best Authors, and such as are accounted the fathers of the Italian tongue, both ancient and modern, have ever used, and still use the same as a letter and aspiration of necessary use, as giving vigour and pulse unto the next ensuing letter, for so much as it doth many times clear doubts, and remove equivocations: And for my particular, I cannot be induced to allow the loss of it.

Hà, is sometimes part of the verb Havére, be, she, or it hath: It is sometimes used in place of Sono; as, Hà sette anni, seven years are past and gone Sometimes it is an Interjection of grief, of threatening, of chiding, or exclamation; as, *ah what? or of whispering; as Oh that!
